ABSTRACT

This bibliography is suggested for use by students and teachers of Latin, Greek and ancient civilizations. Entries are compiled under the headings of: (1) bibliographies and journals including booklists, periodicals, and books for teachers; (2) reference works in literature, mythology, history and antiquities, and language; (3) texts and anthologies; (4) commentaries on Greek and Latin classics; (5) translations; (6) literary history and criticism; (7) ancient history; (8) Roman Britain; (9) archaeology, antiquities, and society; (10) architecture and art including works on Greece, Rome, and Etruria; (11) philosophy and science; (12) the legacy of antiquity; (13) later Latin; (14) fiction; and (15) nonfiction for younger pupils. Data on publisher and price are included for the approximately 550 entries. (RL)

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE CLASSICAL SHELVES OF A SCHOOL LIBRARY

Paper No. 3
Revised
March, 1968

ED 044989

This list is meant to suggest books useful for the study of Latin, or of Greek and Latin, and of ancient civilisation. Its range is extremely wide both in the ages of pupils and the degree of specialisation. The actual choice of books will obviously depend on the needs and views of the individual school. These suggestions are due to several contributors, to whom JACT is again grateful.

The books listed were, to the best of our knowledge, available, at the prices given, in February 1968. However a few books now out of print were thought to deserve inclusion (with the last recorded price in parentheses). In the case of a Penguin or Pelican title, the parentheses indicate that it did not appear in the February 1968 list of titles in print: but titles in demand are reprinted from time to time. The term "paper covers" indicates paperbacks on good-quality paper. Where two prices are given, the second is for paper covers.

For books published after the compilation of this list, consult the lists and reviews in the termly Bulletin of JACT.

Mention of illustrations implies that they are a prominent feature.
